ImageSign is a small Windows application whose purpose is to help you stamp all your images with text or date watermark at the same time. User interface You are welcomed by a straightforward GUI that offers quick access to the files and folders stored in your computer, so you can easily select the directory that contains the photos that you want to process. On the downside, the tool works only with the JPG file format, so you cannot upload pictures with other formats (e.g. GIF, PNG, BMP, TIF). When you perform a left-click mouse operation on the desired folder, the program automatically builds up a list with the JPG items. What's more, you can preview the pictures in a small panel. Embedding watermarks ImageSign gives you the possibility to create watermarks by adding the file date or user-defined text message on the images. Additionally, you may change the text in terms of font, size, and color, pick the desired position of the watermark, as well as preview the output file in a dedicated window. The program offers support for batch operations, which means you can add multiple files and process them at the same time. Performance Tests revealed that ImageSign carries out a task quickly and provides very good output results. It is quite friendly with system resources, so the overall performance of the computer is not affected. What it lacks You cannot drag and drop the custom text or date to the desired position on the photo, insert shadows, embed 3D text messages, create image watermarks, and work with multiple layers. We have cloned and sequenced a cDNA encoding human cAMP-dependent protein kinase A (PKA). The amino acid sequence of the two catalytic subunits of PKA, determined in our laboratories, shares 92% homology with that published for rat PKA (Greenwood, D. and Kylstra, J. (1986) Eur. J. Biochem. 162, 539-545), and 86% homology with the sequence of a cloned human protein kinase A subunit cDNA (Heidmann, K., Clemens, K., and Mason, G. (1986) Nature 320, 625-631). The clones were overexpressed in E. coli and large amounts of catalytically active PKA were isolated. The partially purified kinase had a specific activity of 800 mU/mg protein, which is about 10-fold higher than that found in human platelet and several hundred times higher than in rat PKA. We also purified a kinase inhibitory peptide fragment, AA(17)-GEK(20) (abbreviation: AA(17), geometrical alanine at position 17; GEK(20), glutamyl-glutamic acid-leucine-lysine-20) from human c-src protein kinase C and used it as a specific inhibitor for the human PKA.
