Kendo LinkedIn Email Finder X64

Kendo LinkedIn Email Finder is a small extension for Google Chrome that aims to offer a easy way of getting private and company email addresses from LinkedIn Sales Navigator and LinkedIn Recruiter. How does it work? The extension will quietly reside in its bar most of the time, however, while you are on LinkedIn, you can activate this little tab (by clicking on the Kendo guy icon) that will show you the addresses. This information is extracted from inside a huge database that amounts to over 750 million emails. So, no matter if you're looking for private or company emails, you'll get both of them or at least one, hopefully. In case the recipient has no address to display, the extension will redirect you to the most relevant link that might get you the info. Also, the suggestion is displayed with the site's full name, so you can check it before going there, just to be safe. Web-based GUI As an extra feature, though it seems more like the main one, the extension provides you access to a page that acts as an online interface. From there you can manage the dashboard, import bulk profile lists, execute domain-based searches, and integrate the extension to multiple related platforms. Furthermore, if you look to keep a list with important contacts, you may want to take a look at the My Leads menu, which provides a more detailed view of a LinkedIn account. To add contacts to that list, all you have to do is hit the Bookmark button in the extension's UI. To conclude Kendo LinkedIn Email Finder is definitely an app that doesn't in sword fighting but in data gathering. It's very swift and intuitive, and can be a handy tool for users who look to have access to a large database with millions of LinkedIn accounts.
